International Conference on

“Sustainable Management of Water Resources in India”

Supported by UGC-SAP-DRS-II

22nd & 23rd February, 2019

About the Conference

India's water crisis has reached alarming proportions and experts predict that it will worsen in future. NITI Aayog [National Institute for Transforming India, the Government's official think tank / advisory body] published a Report which presents an alarming scenario. Observing that “India is suffering from the worst water crisis in its history and millions of lives and livelihoods are under threat”, the Report points out that “currently over 100 million Indians face high to extreme water stress and about two lakh [two hundred thousand] people die every year due to inadequate access to safe water”.

Water shortage has adverse consequences on all the sectors of the economy and will harm the prospects for economic growth. The looming water crisis and the economic damage which will ensue can be averted only through policy measures implemented on a war-footing. This requires understanding the roots of the water crisis and identifying the appropriate measures to address it within the resource constraints.

The Department of Economics, Annamalai University, is organising an International Conference under the auspices of UGC-SAP, on Sustainable Management of Water Resources in India.

Papers are invited on the following themes:

1. Impact of water stress on the quality of life of people and on the economy of Tamilnadu and other regions in the country.
2. Methodological approaches to measure water stress.
3. Approaches to sustainable water management.
4. Valuation of water resources and the application of valuation studies for water management.
5. Case studies of sustainable water management in India and other countries.
6. Instruments for water management.
7. Institutions for sustainable water management.
8. Gender issues in water management

Participants can be Research Scholars, Academics, Administrators and NGOs working on water resource management. The organisers welcome papers with a wide range of theoretical and empirical perspectives. While the emphasis of the conference is on water management, some submissions from other disciplines will also be considered.
