Press Note

Prof. V. Murugesan, Vice-Chancellor, Annamalai University has directed all the Course Teachers to engage the students who are at home due to lock down, by providing them lecture materials through University website and also the various e-resources available on National Digital Library, NPTEL and MOOCs. This will greatly help to minimize the dislocation of the academic calendar after resumption. He also directed the Deans of Faculties and Heads of Departments to share the various online resources to the students. Further, he directed all faculty members to get connected through various social media to engage the students in academic activities. He also advised the Faculty members who are working from home to engage in course materials preparations, questions for question bank, writing research articles, project proposals etc. The Central Library has provided remote access of all e-resources, to all the Faculty members, research scholars and students from their homes. The schedule of the examinations for the on-campus students and distance education will be drawn after the lock down is lifted. The Vice-Chancellor also reviewed the preparedness to handle Covid-19 patients by the Rajah Muthiah Medical College Hospital. He advised all to follow the instructions of the Government in social distancing and staying at home. The staff and students of Annamalai University are willing to cooperate with all measures taken by State and Central Governments during this pandemic crisis.
